Street smart: LED technology expands

MORENO VALLEY - Street lighting costs will be going down, thanks to LED technology.

MoVal has become the largest Inland Empire city to convert 270 street signs away from traditional florescent tubes to LED.

Jeff Flowers at Archipelago Lightning in Montclair says the savings are significant.

"Typical savings are around 60 percent for electricity. An LED will last for about 100,000 hours."

Flowers say the tube-type LED's are finding applications in homes, as well. (INT)
